

Free period products
@ football grounds

Free period products @ football grounds

1. We believe period products should be readily available and accessible at no cost, just like toilet roll and soap!

2. Periods are a taboo subject and shouldn't be. We want to put periods into public consciousness and create discussion on menstruation. Social attitude needs to change!

3. Increased visibility for female football fans! We want football clubs to show that they are forward thinking and inclusive. Meet the needs of their fans and send out a strong message to others!

4. Period Poverty is a major issue - We want to do our bit to highlight this.

1 in 10 girls can't afford to buy menstrual products according to Plan UK.

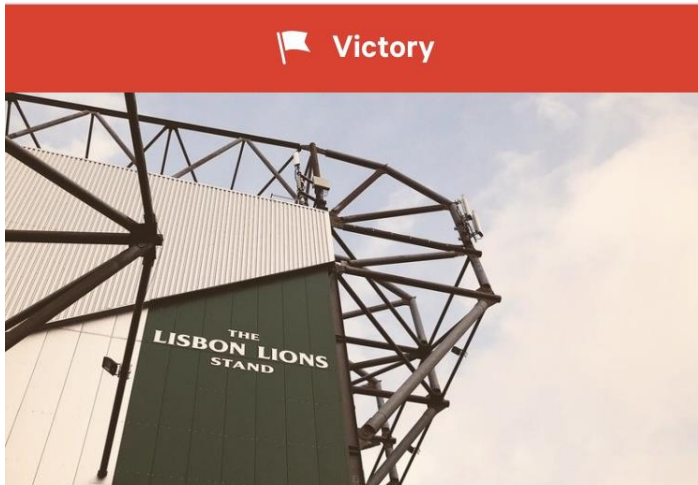

Nearly half (48%) of girls aged 14-21 in the UK are embarrassed by their periods.

Free period products @ football grounds

Free Sanitary Products at Celtic Park

3K supporters

Free Sanitary Products at Celtic Park

Replying to @BBCSport

Periods and football, which half are we discussing, and while we are, lets get free hankies, just incase your teams losing.

Not entitled to shit. We've lived millions of years without tampax. Fairs fair, we want free condoms.

22/08/2018, 19:24

Replying to @BBCSport

Seriously! Free! Why? Ffs women like this piss me right off. It's a football match we are all there as fans, put your sanitary products in your bag and go watch the game without turning it into some man/woman agenda shit! For the record I am a woman!

Replying to @BBCSport

Free razors for men

23/08/2018, 18:09

@BBCSport

Stay in the kitchen...never caught off guard then.

23/08/2018, 22:09

Replying to @BBCSport

fucking stupid slags, they are lucky to have womens bogs at the ground

22/08/2018, 19:28

Replying to @BBCSport

BBC representing the offspring of moronic people who went on a school trip and don't take a packed lunch.

Replying to @BBCSport

Utterly silly and wholly inappropriate for the BBC football page.

Celtic fans live under the grand delusion that being catholics gives them moral superiority. This is part of that idiocy. They don't support Palestinians, they are sectarian yobbos.

Replying to @BBCSport

Seriously 🤔 what is the world coming to ? Free jam rags ? Only if the blokes get a free pint 🍺

22/08/2018, 19:26

5 Likes

Replying to @FulhamFC and @OnTheBaw

What a load of rubbish....average tickets pushing 50 quid but cannot afford tampons...pc nonsense

This English woman was replying to BBC sport! I stand by every word free products at football not needed as they have enough money! Free in schools fine! Tampons 75p Towels 55 p in Asda yesterday, period poverty is false! Please pass on to others cos I'm blocking all Scots!

Free period products @ football grounds

Everton
in the Community

ALJAZEERA

WOMAN'S HOUR

The Guardian

THE
wire

On The Ball
@OnTheBaw

📅 17 Our next meeting is tomorrow night
📧 We'll be picking up all emails/DMs and going through our to-do list. We'll come back to you all as soon as possible.

🕒 We manage the campaign in our spare time - Mostly during our lunch breaks, evenings and weekends.

On The Ball @OnTheBaw · 6m
43 🏆 | @DurhamWFC are On The Ball!

Huge well done to everyone at the club and to @BethanySuggett for her efforts - We're so delighted!!! 🙌👏

Read more in their statement below 📌

Durham Women FC 🟦 @DurhamWFC
👏 Durham Women FC are delighted to confirm that we will be supporting the @OnTheBaw campaign.

Our support of the campaign will begin at tomorrow's game against Lewes.

Read 📌 goo.gl/3w17jr

We're #OnTheBall