Our vision is that all children in Scotland are supported, included, and listened to throughout their education

Who we are

Enquire is the Scottish advice service for additional support for learning. We help children, young people, parents, carers and professionals understand children's rights to support in school and early years settings, and work together to get the right support in place.

We do this by:

- Providing easy to understand advice and information about additional support for learning legislation and guidance
- Sharing practical tips to help families and schools work together
- Helping families find local education and support services.

Reach.scot

On our website for children and young people:

- Find out about the different ways to get support with their learning
- Learn about their rights to be included, listened to and involved in decisions about their education
- Hear from other children and young people with additional support needs about the things that are important to them, and what's helped them at school.

On our website

- Practical information and advice for parents and carers
- Resources for professionals
- Information about our upcoming events, and videos of our past webinars
- A searchable database of other useful organisations and websites.

Our accessibility tools allow you to access all our information in different ways, including translations into over 100 languages, text-to-speech, and with a range of reading tools.

Our helpline

Our helpline advisers can listen to you, explain how Scottish education law and guidance applies in your situation, and provide advice about the next steps you can take.

Call 0345 123 2303, or use webchat or email via our website.

Events

We host regular free online events where you can learn more about the education rights of children and young people with additional support needs.
